William Jessup University's School of Education graduate programs are highly regarded in the field of education due to our scholar-practitioner model. All educators must be effective researchers to be successful in today's classrooms. We prepare high level scholars by exercising strong communication through reading, writing, listening, and speaking skills. On the other hand, we prepare effective practitioners for the field of education through field experience, customizable projects, and case-study scenarios. Because of this scholar-practitioner model, many of our students quickly rise to leadership positions. If you would like to continue learning towards a degree come and join our family.

William Jessup University is regionally accredited by WASC Senior Colleges and University Commission (WSCUC), and the School of Education is accredited through the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing (CCTC).
